‘My friend helped me with this as didn’t know about it. Using her phone. Blown my mind that people are doing something about this’

Survey Respondent

‘Hope this research helps people. Its f*** up. we all know people who we think might be happier being more themselves’

Survey Respondent

‘Thank you for asking these questions an’ I look forward to things getting better’

A Need For Change

‘My nephew whispered to her, ‘he’s married to a dude’. It was so funny. She wasn’t bothered. Like children aren’t closed minded. It’s society that teaches... that brings in hatred.’

Focus Group Participant

‘Very lonely [coming out]. Told there are places to go to but no, not as a Traveller.’

Survey Respondent

‘That’s the weirdest thing, isn’t it? When you see people from minority backgrounds judging others for who they are?’

Proud of Our Identities & Ethnicities

‘In my head...I am the most Traveller of all Travellers...because I’ve never not been a Traveller do you know [...]. Some elderly Traveller women... decided that I wasn’t a Traveller... people who were very clear in their own identity, but who felt comfortable enough to call me out in a space. And they never said it but... it did feel like it was about being gay.’

Focus Group Participant

‘The table is right behind me... it’s...a constant reminder to me of who I am. I have a collection of these little tin pieces from Tom McDonnell.’

Being Yourself

‘When I told my father...I dropped to the floor and just started crying, I’m so sorry if I could change this I would. These are exactly his words. There’s nothing wrong with you. If you go around thinking there’s something wrong with you, you’re going to be a very unhappy person for the rest of your life.’

Focus Group Participant

‘I went back and got hit so I just left. it’s not about loving people less, it’s also just about loving yourself as well.’

Focus Group Participant

‘I got a girlfriend, but I came out for the fact that one, I wanted to be happy myself, and two, because I wouldn’t let a girl come into my life and let her hide as much as I was hiding.’

A Look Forward

‘It’s been ingrained in everyone’s head in the Travelling community that being gay is a taboo thing... you just doesn’t exist. Obviously, it’s just been passed down from each generation to generation. And now it’s getting a bit better because...it’s more modern times now. You see it everywhere now.’

Focus Group Participant

‘I’m now in a lot of great support. I think in order to change things, we have to like stand up and just do it, you know? I brought my boyfriend home and we stay in my parents and we go to family weddings and parties now. And it’s really normalized more to people. It gives examples for younger kids, and that’s how you change stuff. I got a happy life now.’
